MR. BLAINE TALKS,

The Secretary Says He's Not as Strong as John L. Sullivan. New York, July 14.-The Evening Sun

entains a special from Bar Harbor giving an account of an interview with Secretary Blaine. In it Mr. Blaine is quoted as fol-"I am not dying at all. I am not as strong as John L. Sullivan, but I'm good for many years yet. As for being weak and exhausted that's all very true. I am nervously weak and I need rest, but that is no sign that I am a good subject for an undertaker. I don't eat much solid food; because I don't have the desire for it. I like milk, eggs, plenty of butter and good bread and cheese. I don't walk much, because walking wearies me. I feel the excess of exertion most in my back and head. I drive almost all the time. I can enjoy myself best in a reclining position, and that is why I have my carriage filled with pillows. I am not weing my reason-ing faculties any more than I can help; I'm simply reading and resting. My eyesight troubles me a little. It came from too much writing and reading in Washington last winter. When I get enthusiastic over an article I'm busy on, I positively can't leave of working until it is finished. suppose I strained them, and with this attack I am just getting over, they have become weaker than usual. It's nothing serious, however; nothing that rest and plenty of sleep cannot cure."

Irwin himself received a letter, written and signed by the same party, which says, among other things: "By the eternal God, if you attempt to enter that office or go to any meeting of the board either to-morrow or ever after, we solemnly swear that we will not give you twenty-four hours thereafter to live.'

The Itata Not Wanted.

It was generally believed that the case against her was much stronger that that which could be made out against the Itata, and notwithstanding the reservation made Judge Ross in his decision, it by is felt that his action will cause the failure of the briginal libel ledged against the Chilian vessel, although she may still be held on some technical charge connected with her escape while under legal detention. drowned near Long Point during the Igale Uncle Gave Her. A few days ago a little girl-a tiny thing only four years old-went with her marama to pay a visit uptown, says a writer in the New York evening sun. When she came out she had a 25-cent piece clasped tight in her fat hand. As they walked up the street, suddenly the little one espied a most disreputable looking cat lying on the lower step of a stoop. It looked sick and forlorn and lay as if dead. The child rushed up to the creature and stroked its back with soft little touches that the German emperor was an interuntil the poor thing opened its eyes John C. Only a few days before his death the matter was cleared up. In a conversation with a gentleman from this city the general was asked why he had left this city for Washington, and Crows will, after due deliberation, put an offending bird to death; and if a pair of rooks, too lazy to find building materials for themselves, steal sticks and other articles from their neighbors, their nest will be destroyed by the other inmates of the rookery.

Cruel Hunters.

Two hunters near Reading, Pa., stole a bear's cub the other day and were pursued by the mother. After running until they were almost exhausted they stopped, and the man with the cub, taking it by the hind legs, attacked the mother. He beat her across the nose with her offspring so hard that she finally fled, leaving the hunters with the cub, which was
